History & Mission: In April 1899, the Revenue Cutter Service (RCS) signed a lease for 36 acres of farmland surrounding Arundel Cove. Two months later, LT John C. Moore, USRCS, arrived aboard the side-wheeler COLFAX to begin establishment of his experimental shipyard. The following year saw the arrival of the CHASE, a training ship for the RCS. The crew set up permanent quarters at the Arundel Cove “Depot,” marking the beginning of the Coast Guard Academy. In 1905, Congress authorized the purchase of the Depot’s land, added 76 more acres, and the “Revenue Cutter Station At Curtis Bay” was permanently established. Throughout its first decade, the “Depot” repaired many life-saving boats, constructed a variety of small boats, conducted overhauls, and painted RCS cutters.

For over a century, the United States Coast Guard YARD has built, repaired and renovated ships in Maryland for the U. S. Coast Guard. It is the service's sole shipbuilding and major repair facility, and an essential part of the Coast Guard's core industrial base and fleet support operations. The YARD, a full service shipyard, has a consistent record of exceeding customer expectations for quality, cost and timeliness. These characteristics make it a preferred source of maritime industrial support and services. The tradition of excellence and vision of quality performance ready the YARD for continued award-winning work, while proudly living up to its motto, "Service to the Fleet!"
